

Persian Ironwood Tree

Parrotia persica

Usually a shrub with branches starting at ground level, growing to become a medium-large tree with a spreading, irregular branching pattern.

Sometimes also cultivated as a high stemmed tree. This is especially decorative in more mature trees.

The main value is the autumn colours of red, yellow and purple. Mainly older specimens bloom. The flowers are about 2 cm big and are striking due to the bright red anthers.

The bare shrub is spectacular when in full bloom. After flowering, small spiked brown fruit appears.

Sun zone

Medium sun

Water zone

Medium water

Foliage colour

green

red

Bloom colour

red

Bloom months

March

Average height

25 ft

Average width

15 ft

Stock size

- 10 Gallon