Pin Oak

This is a fast-growing, fairly large tree found on bottomlands or moist uplands, often on poorly drained clay soils.

The wood is hard and heavy and is used in general construction and for firewood. Pin oak transplants well and is tolerant of the many challenges of the urban environment so has become a favored tree for streets and landscapes.

Quercus Palustris Stock category Trees Stock subcategory Ornamental

Characteristics

Average height

65 ft

Average width

30 ft

Bloom colour

White

Bloom months

May

Foliage colour

Green
Sun zone
Medium sun
Water zone
Medium water